

Michelle Warren is the Advocacy and Strategic Engagement Director for the Christian Community Development Association, based in Chicago, IL. She has been working in Christian community development for 24 years utilizing her skills as an educator, non-profit manager and public policy specialist.

Michelle earned her Bachelor's degree in mathematics from Cedarville University and later earned her Master's in Public Administration from the University of Colorado. She is an immigration, education and human service policy specialist. Michelle is an adjunct faculty member at Denver Seminary in their Justice and Mission's program, teaching, Political Advocacy, Doing Justice in the Public Square.

Michelle is a consultant for the National Immigration Forum, a non-partisan, DC based immigration advocacy organization as the Western Regional Consultant for their Bibles, Badges & Business campaign. Michelle's immigration work has been featured in local markets like The Denver Post and Colorado Public Radio as well as national Christian and secular media outlets like The L.A. Times, the PBS News Hour, Christianity Today, CBN, Christian WORLD magazine and numerous others.

She is the author of, The Power of Proximity, Moving Beyond Awareness to Action. She is married to David Warren, Executive Director of Open Door Ministries. They live in Denver with their three children, 21, 19 and 15.